Turns out London's not a cotton candy, candy apple kinda town.

But when it comes to Asian cuisine, baked potatoes and even salads — bring it on!

So says Doug Hillier, organizer of this weekend's International Food Festival in Victoria Park.

"It seems our city has rebelled against cotton candy and candy apples," Hillier said as vendors were scrambling to set up booths on Thursday. Festival participants have "told us that they are noticing London is a healthy city," he added.

And when vendors talk, Hillier listens. In the past three years, organizers have made a concerted effort to up the number of healthy options available at the event. They've even tested the market with food that's far from the usual high-calorie festival fare.

Hillier often gets his family involved, serving them offbeat offerings as a trial.

Some ideas have flopped royally — such as the vegan salad booth that left the workers twiddling their thumbs.

"That went a little too far" on the healthy scale, Hillier said.

Then there was the fair-trade coffee experiment.

"It's too hot for that," he said. But some things have been a huge hit, like organic beer, which is making a return this year. New to the healthy lineup this weekend is sushi.

"People are still going to get lots of french fries and pizza and that kind of stuff," Hillier said. "But things like the sushi and the organic beer, it raises a lot of discussion."

The festival will showcase lots of new restaurants — chains and those based in London.

All told, there are 55 food booths, 100 exhibits, a carnival and three stages featuring 25 bands.

Methadone clinics, crime not necessarily linked, says study

Reaction. People shouldn't be 'jumping to conclusions': Police Chief Brad Duncan

angela.mullins@metronews.ca

People shouldn't rush to judge when it comes to methadone clinics and crime, police Chief Brad Duncan warns.

While crime rates around London's five clinics haven't been analyzed, Duncan said most of the facilities aren't known as neighbourhood trouble spots.

"There are locations where methadone is being dispensed in our community where there are absolutely no issues," he said. "People wouldn't even know that's happening."

"One has to be careful about jumping to conclusions."

A recent U.S. study billed as the first to examine crime near such clinics supports Duncan's philosophy.

The study compared crime around 13 Baltimore methadone clinics to that in other areas with a lot of foot traffic, namely hospitals and convenience stores. The statistics indicated convenience stores were a more likely crime scene, concluded Dr. Susan Boyd, a psychiatrist and the study's author.

Boyd, a University of Maryland professor and director of an opiate treatment program for veterans, said the study could ease the opening of new clinics worldwide.

Increased crime was one of the main concerns cited earlier this week by people worried about a proposal to open a methadone dispensary at 425

Wharncliffe Rd. S.

For at least some near the proposed site, a generally negative feeling about clinics is enough to cause worry.

"Perception is reality," Michael Pope, who co-owns the Dairy Queen next door, said earlier this week. "Would I not buy a Blizzard because there's a meth clinic next door? Not necessarily."

But some people may not. That's a problem."

Investigation. Probe into lunch meeting nears end

An investigation into allegations that city councillors violated the Municipal Act during a February lunch meeting is expected to be finished early next month.

A spokeswoman for Ontario Ombudsman André Marin's office said the city will have a chance to respond to the findings before they are made public. A more detailed timeline wasn't available Thursday.

Marin launched his investigation after receiving complaints that six councillors, including the mayor, got together at the Harmony Grand Buffet hours before a final vote on the 2012 budget.

Budget. Premier McGuinty has some explaining to do

Last week, Premier Dalton McGuinty was warning Ontario's Liberals to get ready to board the campaign bus for a summer election.

This weekend, he'll be explaining why his budget — despite all the changes the New Democrats forced him to make — isn't so bad after all.

The budget war is a cautionary tale about governing in a minority parliament. Deals with opposition parties must be made if the Liberals want to push their agenda forward.

But faced with a fragile economy and a $15-billion deficit, McGuinty is under pressure to make things work. The premier says all the parties have learned

New fare cards. LTC to move on smart technology

The London Transit Commission is expected to hire a consultant next week charged with transitioning the service from paper to plastic.

The commission received multiple bids on what's dubbed the "smart-card" project, general manager Larry Ducharme said. The proposals are still being assessed and will be made public at Wednesday's board meeting, he said.

Officials have said $2.2 million has been budgeted to implement the system, which will allow people to store bus fare on re-loadable cards. The new technology is expected to include electronic readers on buses so passengers can simply waive their cards and have money deducted as they board.

The cards also could store transfers, officials have said.

Ducharme said the new system will be phased in. Shifting every type of rider — monthly pass holders, those with stu-

Queen's Park. Orser mulling provincial run

There won't be a provincial election this summer, but city Coun. Stephen Orser says he'll strongly consider making a run for Queen's Park when the time comes.

On Wednesday, the NDP abstained from the final budget vote after getting the Liberals to add a tax on the rich and delay corporate tax cuts, and the government easily outvoted the Conservatives.

However, some political insiders believe the McGuinty government could be defeated as early as this fall and if that happens, Orser may attempt to run for higher office.

"It's a serious consideration," he said. "I've got a seven-year-old daughter who comes first, and with that obligation, I'll have to ask her. If she says, 'Go, daddy,' I'll go."

The Ward 4 councillor says he's been approached by officials from more than one party. Orser characterizes the talks as informal at this stage, but he's already developed a platform to run on if he wins a party nomination.

"I would like to strengthen laws for child support and stop deadbeat fathers," said Orser. "I'd like to get fluoride at the provincial level out of our water. I would also like to address sex offenders against kids at a provincial level."

If you carve it, will they come? Merchants hope so

Businesses paired with trees. The first tree sculpture on Hamilton Road will be officially unveiled Friday afternoon at Tile Town

london@metronews.ca

Hamilton Road merchants are hoping some funky forestry will help bring people to their side of the city.

The Hamilton Road corridor will be home to 10 hand-carved sculptures made from tree trunks. The first one, Bucky the Tile Town Beaver, will be unveiled Friday at 3:30 p.m. at Tile Town (465 Hamilton Rd.).

The Hamilton Road Area Business Association came up with the idea as a way to promote local business activity. They've teamed up with Tourism London and hope to have all the trees completed by year's end.

The sculptures are being made from recycled trees and carved by four artists. Each business involved will be identified with a particular tree that can also be found on the Tourism London website.

The hope is that the trees will generate interest and traffic for the Hamilton Road area and its businesses, which include a bar and grill, a library, three public schools, a church and an insurance company.

"If we start with this kind of thing, the businesses will come together and we can get cash flow and funding for improvements and turn Hamilton Road into a Wortley Road," said Dave Broostad, vice-president of the Hamilton Road Area Business Association.

Trees, please

tad, vice-president of the Hamilton Road Area Business Association.

The idea for the project came up after the association commissioned a moose-head tree sculpture on the lawn in front of its own business.

"People were knocking on our door asking about it," said Broostad. "We weren't expecting the attention it got.... It was off on a side street and no one knew it was there."

The association is working with Tim Hortons to make a life-size figure-skating couple to promote the World Figure Skating Championships here in March 2013. It will be located near the intersection of Hamilton Road and Highbury Avenue.

There will be QR codes on each tree that people can scan with their smartphones to get information about the carvings, the businesses, as well as the GPS co-ordinates to next sculpture.

Houser undecided on 'best-case scenario' heading into NHL draft

Almost 200 games into his major junior career, netminder may finally hear his name called

john.matisz@metronews.ca

Despite holding the distinction of producing more first-overall selections than any other major junior hockey club at the NHL draft, there's one London Knight great — the best goaltender in franchise history, no less — who's been denied.

Michael Houser has never been touted as a potential first-round selection, yet since his initial draft-eligible year in 2010, he's heard his name thrown around as a prospect potentially worth taking a flyer on.

Scouts often criticize the Wexford, Pa., native's unorthodox playing style and question the late-bloomer's long-term potential. Others don't see the logic in using one of their picks on a guy turning 20 in September.

In consecutive years, NHL teams have snubbed Houser after a decent and good season, respectively. If the streak continues this weekend, the third snub would come on the heels of a season for the ages.

Which raises the question: What would Houser rather see transpire over the next few months — get picked at the draft, or receive multiple NHL camp invites as a free agent?

"I don't think I've thought about a best-case scenario," the reigning CHL goaltender of the year said Thursday. "I guess it's more about waiting to see what happens. If I don't get picked, there will be some decisions to make in terms of what (NHL training) camps to go to this summer."

Last fall, after posting above-average numbers — .904 save percentage, 3.32 goals-against average and 30-19-4 record — Houser was invited to the Philadelphia Flyers training camp.

This time around, although a year older, most won't be surprised if multiple teams offer Houser a tryout thanks to a six-shut-out, 46-win, .925 save-percentage 2011-12 season.

"I'm not sure what more I could have done," he said.

Houser lives about a 20-minute drive from the Consol Energy Center, the home of his childhood heroes, the Pittsburgh Penguins, and the site of the 2012 NHL draft.

His plans for Saturday — when teams pick players in Rounds 2 to 7 — aren't all that exciting.

The three-year OHL veteran will hit the gym in the morning and then laze around the house.

If the words "Michael" and "Houser" are uttered by an NHL general manager, though, he says he'll race down to the arena.

Anderson makes gains as rookie

When NHL teams gather to plan their future at Saturday's draft in Pittsburgh, Josh Anderson hopes he's on someone's mind — even as he's trying to put the draft out of his own.

"I'm actually going to be on the golf course Saturday to take my mind off things," the 18-year-old London Knight told Metro on Thursday.

As an undrafted OHLer who received limited playing time as a fourth-line rookie on the Knights, Anderson isn't accustomed to dealing with the big stage.

Last summer, the six-foot-one, 183-pounder's goal for the upcoming hockey season was simply to crack the Knights roster as a free agent. The NHL wasn't even something he joked about with friends, he says — it just didn't seem like it was possible back then.

A 64-game regular season and a Memorial Cup run later, things are still uncertain — but in a different way.

Anderson met with 19 teams at the NHL draft combine in Toronto, which is a particularly high number for a player projected to go off the board anytime from the second to fifth rounds.

"My agent has been telling me I could go late second, early third round, around there," said Anderson, the NHL Central Scouting Bureau's 57th-ranked North American skater.

Opting to stay put in his hometown is the safe choice for the lean Burlington kid, says teammate Michael Houser. Distracting himself from the hoopla by hitting the links is an even better approach.

"It's not really that fun to sit at home and keep watching the computer, seeing all the names go by but not yours," said Houser, a netminder passed on in both the 2010 and 2011 NHL drafts.

An Ottawa man who lost custody of his two kids partly due to being overweight said he will go on a hunger strike Friday on Parliament Hill to strike back at the Children's Aid Society (CAS).

Meanwhile, Karen Klein has told police she does not want the boys to face criminal charges. She said she is happy with the swift and strong community response against the verbal attack aboard a Greece Central School District bus, authorities said Thursday.

Criminally charging the boys, all seventh-graders, would require their conduct to rise to the level of a crime, Greece police Capt. Steve Chatterton said. So far, it has not been found to reach that level.

Klein said she hoped the boys' parents would view the video of the attack and talk to their children about being "a little more respectful." Parents of all four boys are co-operating fully and say their children will be punished, Chatterton said.

By Thursday morning, the video had been viewed more than 1.5-million times on YouTube. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Luka Rocco Magnotta made a brief, surprise appearance in a Montreal courtroom Thursday to tie up a few loose ends in his case before vanishing from public view until early 2013.

The accused body-parts killer had court dates set for early next year and was told he will face a preliminary hearing next March where part of the evidence against him will be heard.

Magnotta, charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of Chinese student Jun Lin, 33, has opted for a trial in front of a jury.

He asked that he receive medication while incarcerated.

And he introduced his team of three lawyers, including a lead attorney from Toronto. That lawyer did not ask for a psychiatric evaluation, contrary to what one of his colleagues suggested earlier in the week.

There was one other surprise twist Thursday: Magnotta appeared in court in person. Authorities had hinted that the 29-year-old murder suspect would appear by video link, as he had at his first court appearance earlier this week.

While Magnotta looked sleepy, he appeared to follow the proceedings attentively.

His lead defence attorney, Luc Leclair, made a brief statement at the end of the hearing.

"Mr. Magnotta waived his rights to extradition because he wanted to come back to Montreal," Leclair said, without taking any questions.

"He trusts the Canadian judicial system."

He worked with Defence Minister Peter MacKay, in his bid for the Progressive Conservative leadership in 2003; with Belinda Stronach, when she ran for the leadership of the new federal party against Prime Minister Stephen Harper; and with John Tory, the former leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservatives.

A new ebook says Karla Homolka is now a mother of three living in the Caribbean.

The publishers of Finding Karla say the 46-page book by journalist Paula Todd details Homolka's new life as a wife and mother.

Indonesian air-force plane crashes into housing complex

Jakarta. Aircraft built in 1958 rips through houses, killing passengers and residents

An Indonesian air-force plane slammed into a military housing complex and ignited a huge fireball Thursday while trying to land in Jakarta, killing all seven people aboard as well as two toddlers and their nanny.

The pilot, co-pilot and five trainees aboard the Fokker F-27 were on a routine training flight when it crashed into houses in a neighbourhood about 1.5 kilometres from the runway on which it was trying to land, Indonesian military spokesmen said.

Raging orange flames jumped several metres into the air and a huge column of black smoke billowed over the eight homes damaged in the crash in eastern Jakarta.

Twelve people were injured, two of them critically.

"I could hardly believe my eyes. There was a military plane that crashed and hit the houses," said Hendra, a resident of the air-force complex who goes by only one name. "At once, the situation turned into chaos. All the residents fled in panic. Women and children were screaming hysterically."

He said he helped at least five injured people, mostly with burns, to a nearby air-force hospital.

Six of the people aboard the plane died instantly, and the co-pilot died later while being treated at a hospital, air-force spokesman Rear Admiral Azman Yunus said.

The plane broke into two parts as it ripped through the houses and plummeted to the ground, said air-force spokesman Col. Agus Sasongko Jati. The three people killed on the ground were two children in one of the houses, aged two and six, and a woman who worked as their caretaker, he added.

The aircraft, which was built in 1958 and has been used by Indonesia's air force for the past 35 years with 14,900 flight hours, was declared airworthy before it took off for its second training flight of the day under clear skies.

"It seemed that the pilot was trying to land on a nearby paddy field," Jati told The Associated Press. "But it was not clear whether it was because of an emergency."

A running text on TVOne said the black boxes of the ill-fated plane have been discovered, but Jati did not confirm.

The crash comes after a Russian Sukhoi passenger jet crashed last month into an Indonesian volcano during a demonstration flight for potential buyers, killing all 45 people aboard.

Paraguay congress votes to impeach president

The lower house of Paraguay's opposition-controlled congress voted Thursday to impeach leftist President Fernando Lugo for his role in a deadly clash involving landless farmers, adding to the South American nation's political turmoil and prompting frightened residents of the capital to shutter businesses and pull children from school.

Lugo immediately appeared on national television and promised to face a possible impeachment trial "with all its consequences," dismissing rumours that he might resign.

The lower house approved the impeachment trial by a vote of 76-1. The motion now goes to the opposition-controlled senate, where the trial would be held if approved.

There was no immediate word on when the senate might vote on whether to impeach Lugo and force him to face what is known here as a "political trial."

Critics blame Lugo for the violence that erupted last week when police tried to evict about 150 farmers from a 4,900-acre reserve. Seventeen people died in the clash.

Lugo, 63, has expressed sorrow at the confrontation and accepted the resignations of his interior minister and his chief of police.

Asylum seekers feared drowned

A boat carrying about 200 people capsized south of Indonesia and scores were feared drowned Thursday in an apparent attempt to reach Australia to seek asylum. Indonesian and Australian navies launched efforts to rescue survivors.

An Australian navy patrol boat and three cargo ships had rescued 110 survivors by late Thursday and were taking them 200 kilometres south to the Australian territory of Christmas Island, Australian Maritime Safety Authority spokeswoman Jo Meehan said.

She declined to comment on any bodies discovered. She said the patrol boat would return to the scene of the sinking to continue the search for survivors through the night. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oracle Corp. CEO Larry Ellison is closing in on a purchase even lottery winners can only dream about — 98 per cent of Hawaii's pineapple island, Lanai.

Flaherty introduces new mortgage, lending rules

Expected announcement. Both Flaherty and Bank of Canada head Mark Carney have expressed concern about rising household debt

Buying a first home or taking out a loan against an existing residence will be more difficult for Canadians under new rules announced Thursday, but Finance Minister Jim Flaherty says it's for their own good.

For the fourth time in as many years, the finance minister moved to tighten the mortgage and lending landscape — changes that mean up to five per cent of Canadians who might be considering buying a new home will likely no longer qualify.

This time Flaherty's cutting the maximum amortization period for government-insured homes to 25 years from the current 30 years, and limiting how much homeowners can borrow on the value of their homes to 80 per cent from 85 per cent.

Those are not the only changes the government is making.

It will no longer be in the business of insuring homes that are worth more than $1 million — meaning buyers will need to put up at least a 20 per cent down payment or seek private insurance.

As well, it will insist that prospective buyers have the means to afford mortgage payments, property taxes and heating costs on their home.

It will do so by setting cost ratios based on household income — a kind of affordability ratio — of 39 per cent for gross debt service and 44 per cent for total debt service.

"It's a question of trying to moderate behaviour and I hope Canadians will reflect before they jump into a market at the high end," Flaherty said.

"It will mean that some people will not buy into the market. It will also mean that some people will buy less into the market; they'll buy a less expensive home or less expensive condominium.

"Good. I consider that desirable."

The changes go into effect July 9.

The most significant change is the reduction to the amortization period, bringing it back to the level it had stood historically before rising to as high as 40 years during the heady pre-recession days of 2006.

Bank of Canada

Economy running on fumes: Carney

Canada's relatively healthy economy has been largely based on borrowed money but the situation cannot go on indefinitely, Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney warned Thursday.

The central bank governor's stern words to a business audience in Halifax came just hours after federal Finance Minister Jim Flaherty moved to clamp down on household lending.

Carney made clear that he endorses the moves, calling them "prudent" and "timely" to support the long-term stability of the housing market and guard against financial excesses.

Carney suggested he has no patience for the view that instead of raising interest rates his next move will be to cut the trendsetting overnight rate from the current one per cent, where it's been since September 2010.

Research in Motion zeroes in on app developers

The new BlackBerry 10 prototype is seen during a media event in Toronto on Thursday. DAVID FRIEND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even as BlackBerry maker Research in Motion faces what's certainly the most difficult period in the company's history, its executives haven't lost their sense of humour.

A whirlwind summer tour to entice software developers took a hilarious turn Thursday as the lights dimmed in a hotel conference room and several of the company's development team appeared on screen singing a parody of Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers' The Waiting.

"The waiting is the hardest part. BlackBerry 10 will be state-of-the-art," the executives sang in the mock music video.

"But the waiting is the hardest part."

That sentiment could be echoed throughout the tech industry as investors, analysts and consumers keep their eye on the Waterloo, Ont.-based company. RIM has tumbled from grace over the past two years with remarkable speed, but is trying to prove a newfound agility while preparing the debut of its long-awaited new smartphones sometime later this year.

The pseudo-rock-band parody marked the start of the day-long BlackBerry 10 Jam showcase, designed to convince the tech industry's creative types that the BlackBerry is still a cutting-edge device with a promising future.

The event races across North America in the coming weeks before heading to Europe, Asia and Latin America later this summer. Another Canadian stop is scheduled for July 11 in Montreal.

If all goes according to RIM's plan, developers will buy into the company's new operating system and help turn its BlackBerry App World store into something that rivals Apple's iTunes app selection.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fierce competition

If RIM is able to get more developers onside before the launch of its new devices, it will be further ammunition in its defence against a rush of competition expected later this year

- However, changing the minds of developers is a task that literally will take the company months — the BlackBerry Jam tour, which began this month, stretches into August.

BMO. Court certifies foreign-exchange lawsuit

A class-action lawsuit against BMO Nesbitt Burns, BMO Investorline and BMO Trust Company has been certified by the Ontario Superior Court.

The suit accuses BMO of automatically converting any foreign currency that was paid into RRSP accounts into Canadian dollars without authorization.

It further alleges that BMO charged undisclosed or inadequately disclosed and unauthorized fees related to the foreign-currency transactions.

None of the allegations have been proven in court.

BMO said it was disappointed with the decision and that it would defend the case, but declined further comment because it was before the courts.

The Income Tax Act allowed foreign currency to be held in a registered account after June 14, 2001.

The case is seeking reimbursement of the foreign-exchange fees charged on the purchase and sale of foreign investments held in registered accounts and the fees paid related to the conversion of foreign currencies that were paid into the accounts. THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is no history lesson

Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter. Once you get past the crazy premise, the film is actually entertaining

Richard: Mark, for a movie about vampires it has very little bite. There are a couple of big action set pieces and bloodsuckers get killed by the dozen, but I thought the over reliance on computer generated effects reduces the vampire battles — and that's what we're paying to see! — to a bloody synthetic spray of binary code, and little more. What did you think?

Mark: I have rarely seen a movie with a more idiotic premise, but I have also rarely seen a movie of this type so beautifully shot or art directed. The

Synopsis

The story of Abraham Lincoln's bloodsucker battles begins in 1818 when his mother is killed by a vengeful vampire. His hatred of his mother's killer grows for years, but when he finally has the chance to even the score, he is instead, literally bitten by the urge to hunt vampires. Teaming up with a Van Helsing-esque warrior named Henry Sturgess (Dominic Cooper), he uses a silver-tipped axe to make sure America remains "a nation of men and not monsters."

- Richard: ●●●●
- Mark: ●●●●

3D is ravishing. If you can accept the ludicrous, absurd game of revisionist history that's being played here, you might have a good time at this flick. My main problem is that the movie adopts a different tone in its last third, after Lincoln becomes President. The cleverness gives way to spectacle, and I got left behind in all the conventional carnage onscreen.

RC: I wanted the carnage! This isn't a history lesson, it's a movie about killing vampires and on that level it only works in the film's OTT action sequences. Give me more of Honest Abe jumping from horse to horse during a stampede, and less of everything else. Although I have to have a soft spot for a movie that wraps up (MILD SPOILER) with Mary Todd Lincoln saying, "Abraham! Hurry, we're late for the theatre!"

MB: And the movie lost major points for me for not showing the scene and suggesting that Lincoln's assassin, John Wilkes Booth, was actually a vampire! The movie may not be a history lesson, but it does play with history, which gave it some tang for me. It sure wasn't the dialogue, or the acting. In fact, the lead, Benjamin Walker, got the part because he was the only actor who could embrace the premise without bursting into derisive laughter. You're right about the stampede scene, though. Exciting, original, and very memorable.

RC: You can't make a sequel if you kill the main character! No matter what really happened if this movie makes money, Abe will be back killing vampires, honestly.

MB: What worries me isn't the sequel, but the copycats: Franklin Roosevelt: Werewolf Killer; JFK: Alien Hunter; and worst of all, Stephen Harper: Zombie Slayer.

Pfeiffer's one of us in People Like Us

Going to new places. Veteran actress found it liberating to display natural beauty in warts-and-all role of widowed mother

Metro World News in Hollywood

Despite the fact that actor Chris Pine has grown accustomed to taking a beating on film — with roles in Star Trek and this year's This Means War — Michelle Pfeiffer wasn't particularly enthused about joining the party.

"Oh, I hated that," Pfeiffer says of her first scene with Pine in People Like Us, in which she slaps him across the face. "I didn't like having to do that. I didn't even like watching it. It's so brutal,

Michelle Pfeiffer plays a recently widowed woman reconnecting with her son, played by Chris Pine, in People Like Us. HANDOUT really, to slap somebody. I think it's probably hard for audiences to see that. That's a really hard thing to recover from."

In People Like Us, Pfeiffer plays Lillian, the mother to Pine's Sam, who is dealing with the aftershocks of discovering his recently deceased father secretly had another child (Elizabeth Banks). Given the tension in the mother-son relationship on screen, Pfeiffer's main concern was conveying some warmth in Lillian.

"One of the things (director) Alex (Kurtzman) and I talked about from the beginning was that she just didn't become one dimensional and really cold and icy," Pfeiffer says.

"We wanted to find the humanity of this person who was just really limited and damaged and who had made certain choices in her life that she may regret, that she's not proud of. What I love about her is that she ultimately owns up and takes responsibility for those choices. I think she's unapologetic about it."

Another thing she decided to be unapologetic about was Lillian's look, presenting her natural beauty with a fair dose of weary reality.

"It's not easy to see yourself at your worst," she says of watching the finished product.

"None of us want people to see us when we've just rolled out of bed and your hair is dirty and you don't have any makeup on and you're puffy from whatever you've been doing. And that's who she is."

"I wanted to do that. I wanted to go there, I felt it would be liberating."

Family Guy came first for MacFarlane before he could cuddle up with Ted

The comedy Ted is about a man, Mark Wahlberg, and his talking teddy bear. HANDOUT STILL FROM MOVIE

Bear necessities.

Versatile entertainer's directorial debut was delayed due to flagship show's temporary cancellation in 2004

Metro World News in Hollywood

Seth MacFarlane has certainly established himself as a bona fide entertainer, with three animated series on TV, 2.2 million Twitter followers and a burgeoning career as a crooner.

And now he makes his debut as a director with the comedy Ted.

So why has it taken him this long to get around to making a movie?

A lot of that had to do with making sure his flagship property could survive without him.

"Family Guy had that little cancellation thing happen to it," MacFarlane says, referring to the hit show's brief death in 2001 and re-birth in 2004. "I wanted to make sure that it was fully on its feet after coming back before I stepped away to do a film because it did mean stepping away from that show completely for at least a year, and that was something that I hadn't done yet."

And while Family Guy has its origins in a pair of animated film pitches MacFarlane developed, Ted took the reverse track: "This was an idea that had actually been floating around in my head for a while. I had originally conceived it as an animated series idea and for a number of reasons shelved it," he recalls. "When it came time to do my first movie, it seemed like a story that would make a much better film than a series." That idea — about a man (Mark Wahlberg) and his teddy bear (voiced by MacFarlane) that magically came to life when he was a kid — might seem cartoonish on paper, but MacFarlane's main concern was making the situation believable.

Seth MacFarlane directs Ted and voices the teddy bear.

Set in Toronto, Sarah Polley's Take this Waltz explores infidelity

Adulterous dilemma. Actress-turned-filmmaker's latest effort deals with a moral tussle that will divide audiences

Take this Waltz divides audiences, and actor-turned-Oscar-nominated filmmaker Sarah Polley is perfectly satisfied with that.

"To me the film is a little too soft or something but I'm amazed at the way people are responding to it," said Polley in Toronto recently.

"People bring their past relationship to it, people bring their current relationship to it and I feel like they align themselves with one character or another...so I love hearing what people think the film is saying."

Named after a Leonard Cohen song, Polley's sophomore effort (in theatres June 29) sticks to her roots.

Set proudly in Toronto, Waltz explores a happily married woman's (multiple-Oscar nominated actor Michelle Williams) moral tussle with desires of infidelity when she meets a bohemian artist.

"I actually think the gender divide is really complicated on this one. I feel like it's much more common to see men on television and in movies have sexual restlessness and to still like them (despite) that," said Polley referring specifically to the popularity of Mad Men character Don Draper.

"It's interesting to me that we're more comfort-

Romanticizing Toronto

"I always imagined Toronto would be a main character in a film," said Polley. "It was like an opportunity to celebrate Toronto and really show it the way I romanticize it and idealize it and the way I love it."

achievements — an aspect of her career she admits "may take a bit of a hit".

After 27 years in front of the camera however, Take This Waltz (and the Oscar-nomination she received for writing Away From Her) establishes Polley's best work in filmmaking is yet to come.

"(Screenwriting) is my favorite part," said Polley. "Maybe I feel there's actually very little art to screenwriting. Everybody is impressed if you can write a half-decent screenplay but actually anybody who's ever watched movies could. I find it kind of hilarious."

Weather not to blame

Get to bottom of stage collapse situation

SOUND CHECK
Alan Cross
scene@metronews.ca

It's not your imagination. We are seeing more tragic stage collapses.

It's not enough that concert-goers have to worry about violence, bad drugs and mosh-pit injuries. I know that I'll never see a temporary outdoor festival stage without wondering if the damn thing is going to come down on someone.

This used to be a fairly rare occurrence until 2009 when we had two situations. The first came that August when a windstorm swept through the Big Valley Jamboree in Camrose, Alberta, killing one and injuring 15. The other was in France a few weeks later when a British man died during the construction of a stage for Madonna. (To be fair, that tragedy was caused by the collapse of a crane, not the stage itself).

Last summer, we had three terrible collapses. Cheap Trick narrowly missed being crushed during their set at Ottawa's Bluesfest when the roof came down during a sudden windstorm. Seven people were killed when another storm blew through the Indianapolis State Fairgrounds just before Sugarland was to take the stage. And five people were killed when the weather turned bad at the Pukkelpop Festival in Belgium.

Fans were terrified. Promoters were horrified. Staging companies promised higher standards. Authorities instituted strict inspections. Some went so far as to blame global warming, saying it was the cause of these sudden ferocious storms.

"We won't let this happen again," everyone said.

Kudos to the people in Las Vegas who stopped the Electric Daisy Carnival a couple of weeks ago when the skies turned ugly. Nothing happened and no one was hurt, but better safe than sorry, right?

So why did the sky fall last Saturday before the Radiohead show in Toronto?

It certainly wasn't the weather. It was sunny and pleasant with light winds. The evening's forecast looking great.

The Ontario Ministry of Labour says they're on the case. And because Downsview Park is federal land, Ottawa is on the case, too.

Get to the bottom of this. We need to know why three of five of the worst stage collapses in the world over the last three years happened in Canada.

Jukebox the Ghost has released their third studio album called Safe Travels.

Jukebox the Ghost. Singer Tommy Siegel on the losses that led his usually peppy band to sing about Ghosts in Empty Houses

KILLIAN YOUNG
scene@metronews.ca

The first half of the new Jukebox the Ghost album is as jaunty and upbeat as ever, but later in the journey of Safe Travels, the band trade in some of their certifiably danceable hooks in favor of deeper, darker introspection.

"To me, all good pop music — even good, sunny pop music — has a real hint of sadness going on," says guitarist and singer Tommy Siegel. "If you're all bubbles and happiness all the time, it doesn't really resonate with people."

Siegel says that most of the songs on Safe Travels, were written before the band actually assembled to record. But when pianist and vocalist Ben Thornehill lost his grandfather and drummer

Jesse Kristin lost his father, both to lung cancer, it gave the latter half of the album a heightened emotional power. Tracks such as Dead, Adulthood and Ghosts in Empty Houses deal with weighty fears of mortality previously untouched in the band's first two releases.

"It is more vulnerable," Siegel says of the new album. "It's a lot more personal than we have been in the past."

Fresh off trying out the new material at the music festival juggernaut that is Bonnaroo, Jukebox the Ghost dive headfirst into the type of thoroughly demanding tour that now defines them. Their New York City show sold out months before.

"It sold out so far in advance, that there was never really any way for someone who wasn't already a huge fan of our band to get a ticket," says Siegel of the Bowery Ballroom gig. "So that's really exciting to me — that we're going to get on stage, have a sold-out crowd and it's going to be filled with only people who are really on top of the band and really like the band."

'I still believe in love and marriage': Katy Perry

Despite a heartbreaking divorce from Russell Brand after 14 months of marriage, Katy Perry is keeping positive.

"I still believe in love and marriage. I've just learned lessons along the way. I regret nothing," she tells the Hollywood Reporter. Still, it wasn't easy being on tour while her marriage was suddenly falling apart.

"What was going on in my personal life was so overwhelming that I had to bend over to let those tears fall straight out of my eye sockets and not my false lashes just as I'm about to go up on that ramp and sing Teenage Dream," she says.

"I had to smack myself across the face and say, 'These problems are my problems, they are not my audience's problems, learn to separate that.'"

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Johnny Depp and Vanessa Paradis ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Boredom blamed for Depp split

MONICA WEYMOUTH
scene@metronews.ca

Johnny Depp and Vanessa Paradis are staying quiet about their separation — meaning "inside sources" and "close friends" are extra busy.

According to one source, the reason the ultra-famous, continent-hopping couple broke up after 14 years is pretty much the same reason us mortals call it quits: boredom, with a side of sparkly things in the distance.

"He was bored senseless with her, being with Vanessa was making him miserable," a questionable friend tells Radar Online.

"The spark had gone, and there was nothing left. Johnny just wants more from life and believes Vanessa deserves to be happier too. He's not embroiled in some hot and heavy new romance and he has no plans to jump straight into something straight away, but he is keen to have some fun again."

If nothing else, the fun part seems to be true. After performing with the Black Keys at the MTV Movie Awards, Depp's been spotted out late in Hollywood with Marilyn Manson.

It's times like this we're glad we're not artistic millionaires. Can you imagine having to try new things and party with rock stars every time your life got boring? We can barely find motivation to juice the limes.

Today in the Kardashian saturation

Kim Kardashian thinks she found something special in current boyfriend Kanye West.

"It's very comforting to have someone that knows everything about you, that respects you, understands, has gone through the similar things," Kim tells Oprah in an interview airing Sunday on the OWN network. "I feel like I'm at a really happy, good space."

Kim, we know love — even your brand of it — can be blind, so listen very carefully: We all know everything about you. I spent more time at your wedding than I did at my own. This intimate, special connection you're feeling? Kanye, like the rest of us, probably just "lost" the remote one weekend.

A wine to match those cool summer nights

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
peterrockwell@eastlink.ca

I've never been much of a seasonal wine drinker. The thought of avoiding some bottles in favour of others because of the time of year has never made sense.

Sure, some wines have temperature issues. Now that summer has finally arrived, a heaping glass of full-bodied red can come across flabby and un-inspired when it's hot.

I have to admit, though, summer is really the realm of whites: The kind of wines that refresh and thirst-quench without running amok all over your palate.

Some will suggest that a rich, dry Sauvignon Blanc is the king of summer. Others might choose an aromatic white like one made with Viognier or Chenin Blanc.

While all worthy contenders to the throne, riesling is my go-to warm weather white grape.

Schmitt Söhne's Fünf 5 Riesling ($9.95 - $13.99) is ripe and relaxed with apple-oriented fruit that's drinkable right out of its powder white bottle (OK, maybe with a straw).

The great thing about riesling is it's food friendly. It will help wash down everything from barbecue fare and seafood to more exotic menus inspired by Asia, India and, especially, Mexico.

Flex your grilling muscles with grace

Grill treats, nom, nom, nom. SUBMITTED

Traditionally, summer is a time for men to show their alpha side by getting territorial over their barbecue cooking space while sporting a ridiculous apron. It's a primal thing: raw meat, fire gazing and alcohol.

Stereotypes aside, barbecuing is globally popular and perhaps one of the few occasions that you won't complain when you're presented with a charred carcass.

However, there are ways that we can improve. Yes, gentlemen, barbecuing is not an innate skill. Chef Ben Bartlett explains why there's more to the cuisine than plonking raw meat onto a scorching grill.

Bartlett says, "It's about the flavours from the wood, marinates and spices. Flavoured woods like cherry and apple or oak add a great smokey depth to meats."

There are also some really simple things that we can do to make sure that the meat is properly cooked. The chef suggests, "If you use coals, heap them up into a pyramid add fresh fuel to the edge and push inwards — it creates a really even cooking platform. Secondly wait till your wood or coal goes ashen grey to avoid flare-ups."

The U.K.-based BBQ supremo continues, "Take your meat out 30 minutes before you cook, so that it reaches room temperature — it'll cook more evenly this way. You want to achieve a core temperature of 75 F." METRO WORLD NEWS

Mexican. Margarita Sea Bass — as seen in Ben's Top 100 BBQ Recipes

Ingredients

- 8 sea bass fillets (100 g/4 oz each)
- 100 ml (3½ oz) white or gold tequila
- 120 ml (4 oz) Cointreau
- 150 ml (5 oz) fresh lime juice
- 1 tbsp salt
- 3 garlic cloves crushed
- 3 tsp vegetable oil
- Pinch of freshly ground black pepper

Inspired by the famous Mexican cocktail, this tequila-based marinade is a perfect partner for this celebrated fish.

1. Place the fish in a zip lock bag.
2. Combine the tequila, Cointreau, lime juice, salt, garlic and 2 teaspoons of oil and pour over the fish.
3. Marinate for 30 minutes at room temperature, turning occasionally.
4. Heat the grill to very hot.
5. Remove the sea bass and pat dry.
6. Brush lightly with 1 teaspoon of oil and grind some pepper over the surface of the fish.
7. Grill for 3 to 4 minutes per side.

The flavours of this recipe are inspired by Mexico. METRO WORLD NEWS

Coast-to-coast grilling

The 23rd Weber Canadian Grill Watch Survey is giving insight into the habits, knowledge and trends of countrywide grillers.

• Nine out of 10 Canadians own a gas grill; 78 per cent own one grill, while almost 20 per cent own two.

• Men are the primary grillers (63 per cent).

• Hamburgers are the most often grilled food item (56 per cent); steak is the all-time favourite food item (48 per cent).

• Men are more likely than women to add flavour with hot sauces or jalapeños.

Popcorn goes from movie theatre to dinner table

This Popcorn Burrito recipe serves four. THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O

This simple and delicious Popcorn Burrito can be served as a meal or snack that's whipped up in five minutes.

Have the ingredients ready in the fridge for kids to prepare on their own. All they need to do is pop the popcorn and assemble.

1. Prepare microwave popcorn as directed on package. Set aside.

2. Lay flour tortillas on

Ingredients

- 1 pkg (99 g) buttery microwave popcorn
- 4 large (25-cm/10-inch) multigrain flour tortillas
- 1 can (398 ml/14 oz) refried black beans
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) shredded cheese (cheddar, Monterey, marble)
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) salsa
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) guacamole (optional)

large microwave-safe plates. Spread 30 ml (2 tbsp) refried beans evenly on each tortilla. Sprinkle each with 30 ml (2 tbsp) cheese. Microwave each on high for 30 to 45 seconds or until cheese is lightly melted.

3. Remove from microwave. Place 125 ml (1/2 cup) popcorn on top of melted cheese; top with salsa and guacamole, if using. Roll up and serve immediately. THE CANADIAN PRESS/ KOREY KEALEY FOR ORVILLE REDENBACHER

Honey Cinnamon Crunch. Boost microwave variety with healthy ingredients

1. Prepare microwave popcorn as directed on package; set aside.

2. Meanwhile, in a small bowl, combine flax seed, cinnamon and lemon zest until well combined; sprinkle over hot popcorn in bag and shake well.

3. Drizzle 5 ml (1 tsp) honey into bag and shake well. Drizzle in an additional 5 ml (1 tsp) honey; shake well. Drizzle in final 5 ml (1 tsp) honey and shake well. Transfer to a large bowl and toss again; serve immediately. THE CANADIAN PRESS/ KOREY KEALEY FOR ORVILLE REDENBACHER

- 5 ml (1 tsp) lemon zest
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) honey or maple syrup, divided

Sweet. Peanut Butter Popcorn Cookies

corn as directed on package; set aside.

3. In a large bowl, combine peanut butter, sugar and egg until smooth. Stir in 500 ml (2 cups) popcorn (it will break the popcorn, but don't worry); add an additional 500 ml (2 cups) to bowl and gently stir until partially incorporated.

4. Scoop out 15 ml (1 tbsp) of the mixture and gently press loose popcorn into dough so that there is popcorn on outside of cookie dough ball. Place on parchment-lined baking sheet; repeat and bake for 12 minutes or until golden brown.

5. Let stand for 10 minutes and serve.

Ronaldo leads Portugal past Czechs

Euro 2012. Powerful header from star winger punishes Czech Republic for its negative tactics

After his fine footwork failed to find the target, Cristiano Ronaldo knocked in the only goal Thursday with a thrusting header, sending Portugal into the European Championship semifinals with a 1-0 victory over the Czech Republic.

After Ronaldo twice hit the post, he finally darted in from behind his marker in the 79th minute with all the instincts of an all-out striker and headed a cross from Joao Moutinho straight at the ground and up past the flailing hands of Czech Republic goalkeeper Petr Cech.

"I remember in the last game I hit the post twice, too," said Ronaldo, who scored his third goal in the last two matches. "But the most important thing is I managed to score this time, we won and are in the semifinals. Now it is big smiles and good music."

Portugal, which will play either Spain or France in the semifinals in Donetsk, Ukraine, next Wednesday, is one game away from reaching its second European Championship final in eight years.

Ronaldo already provided some leadership and two goals to get past the Netherlands in the decisive last group game, and his encore was the lone goal on Thursday.

His strike finally punished the negative tactics of the Czechs, who had parked most of their players in front of Cech for much of the game. The Czechs did not have a single shot on goal, and only two attempts during the whole match. The Euro 2004 runners-up had 20 attempts.

"In the second half, we lost our strength and determination and they had one chance that decided the match," Czech Republic coach Michal Bilek said.

When Ronaldo finally scored and was mobbed by his teammates, he went over to the camera with a beaming smile for a victory kiss to the rest of the world.

Clemens risked prison by shunning plea deal

Roger Clemens with his attorney Rusty Hardin, outside federal court in Washington, D.C. on Monday. ALEX BRANDON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roger Clemens rejected a plea deal that would have spared him prison time, and instead took his chances by going to trial.

Clemens' lawyer Rusty Hardin said in a telephone interview Thursday that prosecutors offered to let the former pitcher plead guilty to one count of lying to Congress when he denied using human growth hormone. In exchange, Clemens would have received probation.

The seven-time Cy Young Award winner was indicted in August 2010 on six counts for Possible sentence

Under U.S. sentencing guidelines, Clemens probably would have faced 15 to 21 months in prison if convicted.

allegedly lying to Congress for denying he used GHG as well as steroids. At the time, Hardin revealed that his client had rejected a plea offer, but the lawyer declined to provide the details.

Hardin said his client was offered a deal in December 2009 and immediately rejected it.

"His reason was, 'I didn't lie to Congress,'" Hardin said. On Monday, a jury in Washington, D.C. acquitted Clemens on all counts.

The first attempt to try Clemens last year ended in a mistrial when prosecutors played a snippet of video evidence that had been ruled inadmissible. U.S. District Judge Reggie Walton indicated back then that Clemens was looking at jail time. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Six who should be scooped up quick

The decision is never an easy one — and it might be even tougher this year. With the first round of the NHL draft set for Friday night at Pittsburgh's Consol Energy Center, there is very little consensus among scouts about how things will unfold once teams start taking the podium. Here's a closer look at some of the top prospects, as ranked by NHL Central Scouting:

Nail Yakupov, RW, Sarnia (OHL)

Hometown: Nizhnekamsk, Russia.
Size: 5-10, 189 pounds.
Snapshots: Ranked first among North American-based skaters.... Scored 101 points as OHL rookie for Sting before putting up 69 this year in a concussion-shortened season.

In his words: "I'm not like Bure or like Semin or Ovechkin. All players in this world play different. I want to be Nail and that's it."

Ryan Murray, D, Everett (WHL)

Hometown: White City, Sask.
Size: 6-0, 201 pounds.
Snapshots: Ranked second among North American-based skaters.... Arguably the most NHL-ready player.... He had 31 points in 46 games this season.... Played for Canada at the world championship in Finland this spring, becoming the second-youngest player ever (18) to wear the Maple Leaf at that tournament.... One of five kids in his family.

Mikhail Grigorenko, C, Quebec (QMJHL)

Hometown: Khabarovsk, Russia.
Size: 6-3, 200 pounds.
Snapshots: Appears to be a potential high-risk, high-reward player as opinions vary wildly on how high he should be selected.... Scored 40 goals and 85 points in 59 games.... Was hurt by a poor performance in the playoffs.

In his words: "I think I have a lot of talent and I can be a lot better than I am right now."

Alex Galchenyuk, C, Sarnia (OHL)

Hometown: Milwaukee.
Size: 6-0, 198 pounds.
Snapshots: Ranked fourth among North American-based skaters.... Was limited to eight games this season with torn ACL.... Centred Yakupov's line in Sarnia.... Big and skilled with an excellent shot.... Some believe he could have been a No. 1 pick had he played the entire season.

Malcolm Subban, G, Belleville (OHL)

Hometown: Toronto.
Size: 6-1, 188 pounds.
Snapshots: Ranked first among North American goalies.... Younger brother of Habs defenceman P.K. Subban.... Heralded for his athletic abilities.... Started playing hockey as a defenceman before becoming a goalie at the age of 12 — just six years ago.
In his words: "As I was being a player, I used to always watch the goalie for some reason."

Filip Forsberg, C, Leksands (Swe2)

Hometown: Ostersvala, Sweden.
Size: 6-2, 181 pounds.
Snapshots: Ranked first among European-based skaters.... Still needs to fill out his frame, but held his own against men this season.... Likely to spend another year playing pro in Sweden.... An excellent skater.... Won gold with Sweden at the world juniors this year.

NHL draft. Leafs' Burke has room to maneuver

THE HOCKEY NEWS
Adam Proteau
London@metronews.ca

The Toronto Maple Leafs have made very little noise since their 2011-12 season crumbled into disaster. But that is likely to change at this weekend's NHL draft — and the only question will be whether GM Brian Burke undertakes a massive renovation of the roster, or continues to patiently build toward long-term competitiveness.

The Leafs have the fifth overall pick this year, but it would surprise no one to see Burke move higher in a trade with one of the four teams above him (Edmonton, Columbus, Montreal and the Islanders). However, he also could move down in the draft order if a team offered him immediate help for the NHL roster for the 2012-13 campaign.

And make no mistake, Burke is under enormous pressure to get the Leafs into the playoffs; find them a dependable No. 1 goalie and top-line centre; and avoid depleting the organizational depth he's built up in his four years in Toronto. It's a tall order, especially given that the franchise has just $13.5 million in salary-cap space with which to work. But Burke is known to be a gambler and almost assuredly will take his best shot at hitting a home run on the trade market as he did in the Dion Phaneuf-Matt Stajan swap with Calgary.

If Burke stays where he is in the first round of the draft, he'll likely have a choice of forward prospects including Russians Alex Galchenyuk and Mikhail Grigorenko. There also could be some tantalizing defensive prospects such as Matt Dumba and Griffin Reinhart available, but the Leafs are much deeper at that position (including youngsters such as Jake Gardiner, Stuart Percy and Jesse Blacker) and need much more help at forward.

That said, Toronto needs to improve its overall prospect depth. Yes, its AHL affiliate team made it to the Calder Cup final, but don't take that to mean they're one of the league's top producers of talent. In THN's annual Future Watch edition, the Leafs had just two players in the list of the top-50 NHL prospects — and one of them was Carter Ashton, acquired late last year from Tampa Bay for Keith Aulie (the other is Joe Colborne).

In any case, regardless of what happens on draft weekend, don't expect the Leafs to be satisfied. Their rebuild demands a focus on the future as much as the present.

MLB. Blue Jays pick up starter from Kansas City

The Kansas City Royals sent minor-league pitcher Sean O'Sullivan to the Toronto Blue Jays for cash on Thursday.

The 24-year-old O'Sullivan was 5-4 with a 6.75 ERA in 17 games, including five starts, for triple-A Omaha. The righty has pitched in the majors with the Los Angeles Angels and Royals, going 10-14 with a 6.13 ERA in 43 games.

The Blue Jays also optioned right-hander Joel Carreno to triple-A Las Vegas and announced that right-hander David Pauley will be added to the roster Friday.

Carreno was 0-2 with a 6.60

ERA in six games for the Blue Jays this season. Pauley was claimed on waivers from the Los Angeles Angels on Wednesday.

Also Thursday, the Blue Jays promoted Andrew Tinnish to assistant general manager. The Nepean, Ont., native had served as amateur scouting director since October 2009.

Tinnish joins Jay Sartori and Tony LaCava (vice-president, baseball operations) in holding the assistant GM title. Brian Parker will replace Tinnish as amateur scouting director.

Greeks prep for Germans without 'heart of the team'

Euro 2012. Without Karagounis, underdog Greece takes strength from soccer history

Faced with another "David vs. Goliath" scenario against Germany in the European Championship quarter-final, the Greeks will draw inspiration from the winning side at Euro 2004.

Captain Giorgos Karagounis, whose goal sealed Greece's place in the last eight, is suspended for Friday's match in Gdansk, Poland, after receiving a yellow card for diving in the 1-0 win over Russia. Midfielder Grigoris Makos is his likely replacement, while the captain's armband will be passed to veteran Costas Katsouranis.

"We'll miss Giorgos tomorrow," Greece striker Fanis Gekas said Thursday. "He's the heart of the team. We'll have to close ranks to win."

But that's nothing new to a defensive-minded Greece, which will be underdogs against Germany — the only team to win all three group matches at Euro 2012.

"If you look at it as a contest between David vs. Goliath, that's good, because David won," Greece coach Fernando Santos said.

Santos, who was working as a TV commentator in his native Portugal when Greece won Euro 2004, said he was inspired by that team's determination.

"The tenacity they showed spurs us on," he said. "I think all the coaches at this tournament have the image of being in the final in their head. Me too. If I didn't, I might as well be thinking about going on holiday or going fishing."

But Santos acknowledged that a German club that breezed through Group B with victories over Denmark and the Netherlands has few weak points. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20.

Friends and work colleagues will ask for your opinions today, because they know you will tell them the truth. Don't be too brutal though.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21.

Stick with what you know and trust. The planets warn that if you change, you will make a mistake and damage your reputation for efficiency.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20. If you follow a hunch today, you will be delighted with the results. However, if someone else wants you to follow their hunches, you must decline.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22.

Make your opinions known. Mercury in your sign gives you insights that other people do not possess, so speak up no matter how unpopular some of your ideas might be.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22.

Something that just a few days ago seemed too much for you, will look remarkably easy today.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22.

You've made enough concessions of late and now you must get tough with people who are abusing your generous nature.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22.

An issue you have been struggling with for several weeks will resolve itself today. Even so, you should give some thought as to why it took such a long time to be worked out.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21.

Creative activities will work out well today, but they will work out even better if you bring people into your confidence and let them know what it is you are trying to accomplish.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21.

Someone in a position of authority will give you the chance to prove yourself today and you must seize it with both hands.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan. 20.

What happens today will answer at least some of the questions you have been asking in recent weeks.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb. 18.

You would like to go back and undo a mistake that had far-reaching consequences, but you know that's not possible. All you can do is learn from the situation.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20.

You may not get along with a someone but you'll have to work closely with each other today. The planets indicate there is a karmic attachment between you. SALLY BROMPTON
